The Church on the Hill offers opportunities throughout the year for companies to sponsor our events and receive recognition.

Sometimes companies/organizations are very generous with their support throughout the year and discover at the end of the year that their total participation could have afforded them much more recognition had they identified the events in their marketing strategy during their annual budget preparation.

Therefore, the Church on the Hill Sponsorship Program affords a company/organizations the opportunity to (1) participate at the same levels and in the same programs in which they may already be participating, (2) continue to receive the recognition that they are entitled to, (3) have the opportunity to speak about their companies/organizations at our annual events (and monthly meetings).

Congressman Anthony Brown (D-MD)

Our new Church on the Hill-National Network (NNCMW) Sponsors is Congressman Anthony Brown (MD-04). He was invited to join us for our Tuesday, March 27, '18 from 6:30p.m.-8:30p.m., “Community Forum on Prevention of Child Abuse.” We met at the Cannon House Office Bldg., Room 122, 27 Independence Ave., S.E., Washington, D.C.

The Business Sponsorship Program also offers “Pay Pal” invoicing in order to assist companies in their annual budgeting. Once the company/organization decides on a Sponsorship level, an Invoice may be sent (quarterly or as the company/organization designates) to remind the entity to donate regularly to our cause.

Companies/organizations may choose to either submit their contributions for the Sponsorship Program by check or on-line.

Take a look at the three levels of The Church on the Hill Business Sponsorship Program. We are certain that you can easily identify the level that is most appropriate for your company/organization.

County Executive ELECT (PG County, MD)

Prince George's County State's Attorney Angela D. Alsobrooks on Tuesday became the first woman chosen by voters to lead Maryland's second-largest county, in an election that also saw the expansion of the County Council to include two at-large members.

Two incumbent members of the board of education were ousted by challengers, according to preliminary returns, after an intense campaign that reflected a rift on the board between establishment-backed members and a vocal dissident bloc. But all of the incumbent county council members running for reelection retained their seats.

Democrat Aisha N. Braveboy, who was unopposed, was elected to succeed Alsobrooks as state's attorney. Braveboy, who has never been a prosecutor, says she wants to create more diversion programs for low-level offenders and continue the office's focus on prosecuting and preventing domestic violence.

Alsobrooks easily won a heated Democratic primary in June and faced no opposition in the final months of the general election, after Republican Jerry Mathis dropped out of the race.

She will succeed Rushern L. Baker III (D), who has focused during his two terms on bringing new businesses to the county, decreasing crime and cleaning up local government after the arrest of his predecessor, Jack B. Johnson \(D\), on corruption charges in 2010.

Delores Penn, a retired schoolteacher who recently moved from Los Angeles to Maryland, said it will be “wonderful” to have Alsobrooks — who, like her, is a single mother — as the first female county executive.

“I don’t see single parents really represented,” Penn said. “There’s no breaks for single parents. You’re at the bottom of the totem pole.”

On the campaign trail, Alsobrooks talked about improving the struggling public school system, which emerged as a weakness for Baker in his unsuccessful run for governor, and growing local businesses to expand the commercial tax base.

She is preparing for her new role even as her office works with police and the FBI on a broadening investigation into the causes of the severe electrical shock received by a child swinging on a lighted handrail at MGM National Harbor this summer. She has said investigators “will find the truth” — and she is not afraid of the possibility the truth might include allegations of public corruption.

Kimberly Brooks, 53, said she was excited to back Alsobrooks because of the Democrat’s personal and professional history in Prince George’s County. “I’ve been watching her work over the years,” Brooks said. “She seems very excited to do good work for the county.”
